DETROIT (Mich.) Jan. 20. (P)—The 1913 valuation of Ford Motor Company stock, made in 1910, whose soundness furnishes the main point of contention in the suit for $30,000,000 additional taxes from former holders, was twice checked and approved by T. G. Thurston, when, as an employee of the Treasury Department, he reviewed the assessments, he testified today.

BEDS TOO SHORT FOR KANSANS LEAD TO LEGISLATIVE APPEAL

TOPEKA, Jan. 20. (P)—Men in Kansas grow tall like the sunflowers, so Phil E. Zimmerman, State Hotel Commissioner, and 6 feet 3 inches in height, insists that hotels under his jurisdiction provide beds long enough for the State's lengthy sons.

Zimmerman has found a standard hotel bed to be six and one-fourth feet long. That's enough for Zimmerman to squeeze in, but too short for other Kansans, like Jess Willard, the former heavy-weight champion, who is 6 feet, 8 inches.

The Hotel Commissioner has asked H. W. Behrens, a State Senator, who stands 6 feet 7 inches, to push a bill empowering the commissioner to regulate the length of hotel beds.

CAMERAS READY TO FILM SATURN

Chicago Scientists Perfect
Plans for Picture

Shutters Will Click on Next
Friday Morning

Utmost Care of Details Given to Assure Success

CHICAGO, Jan. 20. (Exclusive)—University of Chicago scientists today finally perfected plans to film the planet Saturn just as it slips behind the moon, where it remains for an astronomically important period of seventy-five seconds beginning at 8:58 a.m., the 28th inst.

Prof. Frank E. Rose and Director Edwin B. Frost of the Yerkes Observatory, in charge of the picture making on that morning, will use light rays ranging from ultra violet to infra-red, with which they have been experimenting in celestial photography.

Although the moon veils the region of each planet once every month, it is only rarely that it exactly overruns a planet's course. When it does the process is called occultation. And occultation, infrequent as it is, is especially rare with conditions of visibility. So the performance of the 28th inst., occurring in the morning, is an episode not likely to take place more than once in sixteen years, according to scientific statistics.

The motion picture cameras to be used in the filming will have lenses with focal lengths of twenty inches, instead of the usual two inches, to enlarge the pictures of the moon and planet in their game of hide-and-seek.

Four or five telescopes will be used. The largest weighs twenty tons, is sixty feet long and has a forty-inch lens.

Prof. Frost has arranged a timing device, consisting of a small electric light synchronized with a clock and the camera, which will register on the film once every fifteen seconds. By this means every picture of the position of the moon and Saturn will be accurately timed and recorded. It will be only a quarter of a second from the time Saturn's edge touches the moon until the planet disappears.

The immediate value of the experiment will be to aid the work of precisely locating the moon in the sky.

MARX FAILS TO FORM CABINET

Impasse Continues Despite Hindenburg Orders

Nationalist Demands Cause
Centrists to Balk

Right to Dictate Membership
Questioned by Leaders

BERLIN, Jan. 20. (P)—President Von Hindenburg is taking a more decisive stand in the formation of a new ministry. Chancellor Marx having failed to bring together a coalition of the middle parties, the President addressed a letter to Dr. Marx insisting on the constitution of the Cabinet at the earliest possible moment commanding a majority in the Reichstag.

Fearless, however, that Germany's efforts toward peaceful reconciliation with the Allies might be jeopardized by Von Hindenburg's determination that his own Nationalist party shall be represented in the new ministry, the Catholic Center refused to give Dr. Marx unconditional permission to accept the President's second mandate to him to form a Cabinet.

The Centrist members of the Reichstag during a stormy two-hour caucus today, at which several of the leaders are reported to have threatened to quit the party, voted to demand that the Nationalists answer a series of questions to be formulated tomorrow before the Centrists will agree to participate in Von Hindenburg's move to force a Rightist ministry.

It is reported that the Centrists will demand among other guarantees that the Nationalists cease their attacks on the Versailles and Locarno treaties and openly subscribe to the foreign policy as conducted by Gustav Stresemann.

Centrist and Socialist leaders question the constitutional right of President Von Hindenburg to request the formation of a Cabinet along certain party lines. They declare that the President's appeal will fail so long as his own party continues to attack the republic and block the United German move for European peace.

JAPAN DIET PROROGUED BY PREMIER

Resolution Introduced by Opposition Expressing
Lack of Confidence

TOKYO, Jan. 20. (P)—The government headed by Premier Wakatsuki prorogued the Diet today for a period of three days when members of the Seiyu-Kai and Seiyu-Honto opposition parties introduced a resolution of nonconfidence. The resolution followed numerous interpellations concerning business depression and tax official discipline.

One of the chief embarrassments of the government, however, was the interpellation regarding the handling of the Bokutsu-Kai, a Korean radical, and his beautiful Japanese wife, Fumiko, were sentenced to life imprisonment, charged with having plotted assassination of members of the imperial family. Fumiko, deeply in love with her husband, for whom she had killed her own family connections, killed herself in jail.

At the trial of the couple, the judge permitted the introduction in evidence of a photograph of Fumiko seated upon her husband's lap.

For this "immoral" exhibit the government was criticized.

Efforts of the government to reach a temporary peace agreement with the opposition failed after declaration of the prorogation. Thereupon Premier Wakatsuki informed the Keisei-Kai, majority party in the Diet, of which he formerly was leader, that he will not hesitate to dissolve the Diet if necessary, even during the period of national mourning for the late Emperor Yoshihito.

The Premier decided upon the three-day prorogue because he hoped that some peaceable settlement might result with the opposition.

GROWTH OF BRAZILIAN TRADE SEEN

American Commissioner Going to Rio de Janeiro as Business Adviser

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (Exclusive)—The appointment of Gregory H. Rickhoff of San Francisco as trade commissioner of the Department of Commerce, with station at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, has been announced by Dr. Julius Klein, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The expansion of sales of American products in Brazil and the vast possibilities for the commercial and industrial development of that country augur well for increased business between American producers and that great market. The importance of supplying the business interests of this country with a source of expert trade information concerning that market and trade promotion therein has been recognized by the Department of Commerce, which will establish a corps of trade representatives in Brazil. The headquarters of that staff is in Rio de Janeiro.

Trade agents stationed in those cities conduct economic investigations, report on business developments, answer inquiries from American business and promote the sale of the products of this country. The addition to that force of Trade Commissioner Rickhoff offers to American business the services of one who is intimately acquainted with the Brazilian people, their customs and methods of trading business and who understands the needs and trade trends of the country and their effect upon the trade of the United States.

U.S.C. Basketball Team Takes on Stanford Five

SPORTS The Los Angeles Times

FRIDAY MORNING, JANUARY 21, 1927.

HELL BEAR WATCHING

TROJANS PLAY CARDS TONIGHT

Olympic Auditorium Scene of Court Contest

Pacific Coast Conference Season Opens

McCandless Bright Star of Visiting Squad

By BRAVEN DYER
Whether U.S.C.'s basketball team has championship potentiality will be determined at the Olympic Auditorium tonight, when the Trojans run up against Stanford's cards. The watermelon waiting contest is billed for 8 o'clock with Aubrey Devine's Trojan freshmen entering the battle, inasmuch as it officially opens the Pacific Coast Conference season. Experts around the Bay region are inclined to believe that California has the best basketball team in the State. This, of course, is mere opinion, but the fact remains that the Bears won the title last year, and Coach "Nile" Price has many veterans back. So in order to be considered "in the swim" U.S.C. will have to thump the Cards tonight or at least make a close contest of the evening's clash.

BROUGHT ALONG SLOWLY
Coach Les Turner has brought his Trojans along slowly. For a time it appeared to U.S.C. rooters that the only thing that made Turner's charges basketball team was the fact that they wore short pants and occasionally shot a basket or two. The Hollywood Athletic Club spanked the Trojans twice in a row and some folks immediately decided Turner's athletes were a hopeless lot. At that time Hollywood's great strength was unknown. Now it is admitted on practically every side that the Motion City quintet is the best aggregation in the south, all of which doesn't make U.S.C.'s two defeats look so bad.

Since those games Turner's men have improved 100 per cent and have turned in eight straight victories. "Red" Badger, the demon football end, has been sharing shooting honors with Jack Bruner. The former holds down a forward berth, while Jack operates from center. Jesse Hibbs of football fame is paired with Badger. They do say that Jesse, who is impressive on the football field, is even more so on the basketball court, where fans are privileged to watch the athletes at closer quarters.

Speaking of football reminds us of the fact that Bruner is the only non-grid athlete on the first team as Manuel Laraneta and Lloyd Thomas are taking care of the guard berths. "Larry" is captain this year and has been playing his usual spectacular though steady game. Needless to say, all these footballers will be in there every minute trying to pay the Cards back for that grid defeat of last October.

ALL LOCAL BOYS

It is unusual that Stanford's starting line-up includes five men who hail from Southern California. Byron Bryant and Johnny McCandless, forwards, call San Diego and Inglewood home, while Wally Jayred, center, went to school in Pasadena. Louis Vincent also hails from the Crown City. Ned Anderson, the other guard, is from Long Beach.

McCandless has been playing great ball for the Cards. He is a tall chap, the ideal build for basketball, and in addition has an accurate eye. A few years ago he was the main reason why Inglewood won the Southern (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

Pedestrians walking in the vicinity of the Biltmore Hotel around noon today will do well to keep an eye skyward. At this hour "Red" Grange, he of football fame, will drop a pigskin from the roof and it is hoped that some member of his New York Yankee club will be able to catch the leather.

Local Boy Defends Flyweight Crown at Garden Tonight; Genaro and Newsboy Brown Also Tangle

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. (P)—A 29-year-old Scotsman will sally forth into the resin dust of the Madison Square Garden ring tomorrow night in quest of the world's flyweight crown, which famous Jimmy Wilde lost here more than three years ago.

Elky Clark's attempt to regain the title for Great Britain from Fidel LaBarba of California will mark the first "long-distance" fight here during his brief reign among the little men of Flatland, for LaBarba, after being limited to six-round contests in New York, is reaching his majority, this time will have twelve three-minute rounds within which to clinch his claim to world's supremacy.

WELLMAN TO GET MISSION TRYOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20. (P)—Roy Wellman, a semiprofessional pitcher from Morro Bay, San Luis Obispo county, was signed today by President William H. McCarthy for a try-out with the San Francisco Mission. A 200-pound right-hander, tried out with the Oakland club a few years ago and lately has been pitching for Coolidge in the San Joaquin Valley League.

CLARK UNIMPRESSED

King critics have not been favorably impressed with the European challenger's training exhibitions and LaBarba has been made a 3-to-1 favorite, but a long record of overseas victories by Clark, punctuated with frequent knockouts, has encouraged expectations of a rugged and aggressive battle on the part of the British boxer.

Observers believe Clark's chances have been materially improved by LaBarba's difficulty in making the 112-pound limit.

Los Angeles High's gym will be the scene of a basketball struggle this afternoon that is expected to go a long way toward settling the question of which team is the better of the two leading City League fives.

Coach Herndon, who has made the Romanas a team to be feared, is expected to lead his team to a victory over the Manual Arts. The Romanas, who are led by the star player, Mott Blair, are expected to be the favorites.

Coach Herndon has a husky, rangy squad representing L. A. High on the court and the Romanas figure to make it tough on Manual Arts because of their size and strength.

However, the Toller quintet, composed of Capt. Sailer, Woods, Rice, Beck and Bostman, has a highly perfected passing attack and should win today's tussle.

In one of the other games today Lincoln travels to Jefferson for what should result in a tight battle.

Coach Van Peit's cagers drew a bye last Tuesday, so today's game will mark their first time out since they were upset by Hollywood.

Light-Heavy
Champ of Navy
to Fight Here

There might not have been much sunshine around Los Angeles and the surrounding counties yesterday, but there were beams of light and joy in Charley Keppen's office at the Los Angeles Athletic Club. It all came about in this way: Charley was in the midst of a gloomy day's work when he received word from Lieut. Jack Kennedy, who is in charge of the battle fleet boxers, that Milton Weber, the light-heavyweight champion of all of Uncle Sam's battleships on the west coast, was all set to take part in the Southern Pacific amateur boxing championships which will be staged here at the Olympic Auditorium on February 2 and 3.

This was real news to Charley, as Weber is the most exciting beauty of the fleet forces. According to the sailor lads, Weber is a real fighter, and he is in charge of the Simon-Pure show, was tickled silly over Weber's entry as he will be a great drawing card for the show.

Another happening that made the rain look like a violet to Keppen was the request from Kenzie Thompson, A.A.E. representative at San Diego, for eight more entry blanks for mitt throwers from that city.

This means that the border city will have at least twenty-seven or twenty-eight amateurs in the four-day fight, and that the city will be the scene of a boxing festival.

CARDS AIM AT
SECOND TITLEBreadon Claims St. Louis is Stronger Than EverLoss of Hornsby Not Serious,
Declares PresidentDouthit and Southworth
Help Strengthen Line-up

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 20. (AP)—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals will go into the 1927 season in defense of their title with a line-up virtually intact, except for manager Rogers Hornsby, traded to the New York Giants.

"We are making no claims, for it is difficult to repeat," said President Sam Breadon, "but the Cardinals will be fighting right up at the top of the National League. I consider the team in better shape now than prior to last season, because Douthit has gained experience and we have Southworth, whom we did not have a year ago."

Douthit, Southworth and Blades, all heavy hitters, probably will make up the outer defense. Blades, who was out of the game the latter part of last season because of a knee injury, has just left the hospital and while still on crutches expects to be able to report at training camp.

Except for Frisch instead of Hornsby at second, the inner cordon probably will be the same as last year. Breadon considers Frisch the equal of Hornsby as a defensive player, and the former Giant batted .315 last season, or one point higher than Hornsby, who suffered a slump after leading the league for six consecutive seasons.

Thermon, considered by many critics as the best shortstop in the major leagues, again will occupy that position, with Bottomly at first and the slugging L. Bell at third.

The Cardinals pitching staff will have its "big four"—Alexander, the Great, hero of the world series; Haines, who won the pennant in 1926; and in addition, Reinhardt, Kern, Herman Bell and Jimmy Ring, the latter obtained with Frisch in the Hornsby trade.

Bob O'Rear, newly appointed manager, named as the most valuable National League player last season, again will be behind the bat and is expected to have the full cooperation of the players by whom he is well liked.

Breadon hopes to sign Eppa Rixey, former major league catcher, who was traded to the Yankees last season, but refused to report.

The board of strategy has been strengthened by acquisition of Bill McKechnie, former manager of the champion Pittsburgh Pirates, as coach.

The advance guard will leave for training camp at Avon Park, Fla., February 19. The cards will play twenty-two games in the winter, all against major league clubs, including nine against the Yankees.

Oxy in Hoop
Battle With
Aztec Squad

Coach Eddie Klenholz will start his first-strings basketball five this evening when the Tigers face the San Diego Aztecs in what looks as a real cage contest at Occidental College.

After an absence of a few weeks, due to ineligibility, Neal Archer, crack forward, will be seen in action tonight against the invaders. Archer, who was traded to the Aztecs, is expected to play a game of basketball with a club team during a year of absence from school and was declared ineligible for the first semester.

Archer and Capt. Billy Miskin will hold down the forward berth tonight, while Howard Black or Rose will grab the center position. Mike Godet, standing guard on the Tiger team of the past two years, will hold down the point position.

Ashes

H LIED to her because he loved her. He lied to her because he felt it could do no possible good for her to know that immediately after dinner he was leaving the house to search for the man who had threatened to kill him.

He did not know, however, that she knew he was lying. He was too stupid and straightforward for subtlety. He did not even lie well. He told her that he was going to a lodge meeting—never suspecting that she very well knew that there was no meeting that night. But he did not know that within the hour he was to face death because of her. Her pretty, rather child-like face gave no hint of her true anger. Her wide-open, baby-blue eyes flashed no warning. He did not suspect that while he spoke gently of the day's work and neighborhood gossip she was planning to leave him—planning to leave with the very man who had threatened to kill him.

Jim Torrence loved his wife, but he had never entirely ceased in making her happy. She was a pretty, effervescent sort, craving sympathy and life; he was the domestic type—content to sit at home by the fire on winter nights, on the veranda in the summer. He talked little. His taciturnity at times was oppressive. But his love for Mary was the biggest thing in his life.

She had never understood him. She had heard from neighbors and from Ed about other women in Jim's life. Because she knew he was lying, and because she was vaguely unhappy, she became coldly angry and determined to leave him for Ed. It was a childish decision; thoughtless and impulsive—the rebellious gesture of a hurt child who loved more deeply than she herself suspected.

She made a last desperate plea. He smiled slightly and repeated his lie. Lodge meeting! When she knew there was no lodge meeting, she had wanted to attend the neighborhood movie theatre with him that night. He did not catch the note of hysteria in her voice. His mind was filled with thoughts of the immediate future: of Ed gunning for him. . . . He kissed her good-by tenderly, never noticing that her lips were cold, her usually pliant body rigid.

Scarcely had the front door closed behind him, when she rushed to her room and flung herself across the bed. The paroxysm of weeping passed in a few moments. She packed with tense haste. She was leaving him because she loved him so well that she didn't understand her own love. She wrote him a note:

Dear Jim: You lied to me tonight. I guess you've lied lots of times before. I guess you think there's been something between me and Ed. But there hasn't. Until now, I'm going with him.

She left the house. She went to a small downtown hotel. She telephoned Ed's rooms. He was out—and so she waited.

Downstairs, in the same malodorous poolroom, the night had occurred the night before. Death was staring Jim entered. The crowd dropped back. Ed looked once into the eyes of Mary's husband and read the deadly message.

Ed pulled a revolver and fired. Jim was killed as an iceberg. He shot—once. Ed crumpled. Then Jim gave himself up to the police. Self-defense, of course. . . . After a good ride. Trial a mere formality. They released him on his own recognizance. He was to return next morning for the inquest.

From the little hotel Mary telephoned again. And Ed's landlady told her—not knowing to whom she was speaking—that Ed had been killed by Jim Torrence. Mary's face blanched. She began to understand—not only Jim's life of the night but also several other things.

She wanted Jim. She wanted to go home. Terror struck an agonizing barb into her heart. Suppose Jim had already been home? Suppose he had found her letter? It wasn't that she could not now go to Ed—it was rather that she wouldn't have wanted to. The thought of Jim in danger—

young woman who apparently had tired of being bobbed, suddenly found herself with short hair again when she lost a bunch of curls while walking in Forty-second street. They slipped from under her hat, presumably when a hairpin was loosened. The girl turned and saw the curls in the muddy street. Unembarrassed, she gave them a sharp kick with a daintily about toe and continued on her way.

in Cleveland.

Three new Curtiss standard J-1 planes have been stolen from the hangar where they had been stored for the winter. The theft was discovered when Ralph C. Wenzinger, to condition the ships for flying.

Police believe the thieves either were in the flying business or familiar with it and they plan to disguise the planes and sell them.

A Child's Garden of Reverses
(Modernizing R. L. S.)

Bed in Winter	The Milk Can
In summer I sit up at night, For daylight saving makes it light.	The pretty can all blue and white Holds calorie material;
In winter, though it seems a crime,	I punch two holes with all my might,
I go to bed by bedtime time.	For cream upon my cereal.
	* * *
I have to go to bed and hear A broadcast story, loud and queer,	Whole Duty of Children A child should always say what's smart,
The toothbrush lecture for the day,	And know the coming stripes by heart,
And many prunes who sing and play.	And get the things he likes at table.
	At least as far as he is able
And does it not seem pretty though?	Looking Forward
When I've outgrown this bed- time stuff,	When I grow up and smoke cigars,
And feel so wide-awake and giggly,	I'll have all kinds of motor cars, And tell pedestrians I meet Not to occupy the street.
To be up and with Uncle Wig- gly?	C. R. S.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. (AP)—Demand for investment securities continued in large volume today and bond prices were firm. The market moved forward on an even keel, with nominal advances in all divisions. Domestic issues proved more popular with buyers than the foreign list, although interest in the latter was strong. Total sales were more than $17,000,000.

Supported by court approval of the sale of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul issue on that company were in high favor, particularly the certificate of 1934. Erie convertible 4s, series "C," and Missouri, Kansas and Texas adjustment 5s figured high up in the trading.

Further gains by Warner Sugar bonds, buoyed up by news of the sale of the company's Edgewater (N. J.) refinery to the National Sugar Refining Company, featured the industrial group. The refunding 7s of the Warner company reached new high prices after advances of nearly 5 points each. Brick activity also took place in American Sugar and Standard Oil 5s. Public utilities were firm, with comparatively light buying.

Purchasers in the foreign field were partial to Belgian and French obligations, especially the 7s of the latter country. Italian bonds received all share of attention, and there was some demand for Latin-American issues.

The United States government group was reasonably steady, with buyers only nominally active. The second and fourth Liberty 4-1/4s were the most popular.

The National Petroleum Company's issue of $25,000,000 4 1/4 per cent debentures was oversubscribed early in the day.

The auctioning record of bonds (of course of dollars) and the high and closing prices in the active market to mention transactions, data is omitted when no bid and ask for the day.

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

The death of "Eagle Eye" reveals that this prominent Indian actor and technical expert was a half-blood Chinaman. Without a drop of Indian blood.

Which Language? As for instance, the "Indian language" from which so many American city names are taken. There are more complete languages among the American Indians than there are languages in Europe under the name of "Indian."

In one section of the mountains of Southern California there are huddled remnants of tribes speaking twenty-seven distinct tongues — all within a radius of a few miles.

A LANCER UP A veteran cavalry officer who is really an expert in such matters, tells me that he saw an Indian movie actor proudly arrayed in clothes that belonged to six different tribes.

STUPID TRANSLATION Sam T. Clover in one of his books gives an instance of the weird translations of Indian names. One of the most celebrated Indians who ever lived has been translated under the name "Foghorn Man Afraid of His Horse." His real name was a title of honor. It was correctly translated: "Young Man of Whose Horses the Enemy Was Afraid."

NEGLECTED LURE I can't understand why the schools should contemptuously lump Indians all in a heap and dismiss them as redskins, and let it go at that.

It would seem much more important that school children should devote time to our own Indian civilization, and the important and interesting subdivisions thereof — rather than the ancient kings of Egypt.

SOCIOLOGY If for no other reason, the story of our Indians is a remarkable ethnological study of effect of environment.

A study, for instance, of the Sioux and the Hopis, and their contrasting modes of life would reduce vague sociological theories to practical demonstration.

If anybody in the school-teaching profession took the trouble to find out about these people, he would find an astonishing laboratory experiment in sociology. How even the religious beliefs have been affected by physical surroundings.

SOCIALISM THRIVED The most complete experiment in Socialism ever made was in the tribal life of some of the plains Indians.

And the effect of it was to show that Socialism is not a progress of civilization; but is only completely successful in certain primitive conditions which concern not the production of wealth but the distribution of wealth as it falls into the communal lap ready made, as it were.

BARRIERS A call has been sent out for a convention of veterans of the Indian wars to meet in Los Angeles this spring.

The press agents refer to the Indians as "savages" and "wolves," and so on. When our troops massacred them, they were "savages" and "wolves."

and Darker IdentityBanker's Son Faces Larceny Charge as Result

A high-sounding English title, fleeting identities, fighting women, a black eye, a trunk of feminine finery and scions of a wealthy Hoosier family co-mingled to form a bizarre background for a drab scene in Judge H. E. Billings' Beverly Hills Township Justice Court in Sherman yesterday.

As a result of the pop-pouri Stoughton Fletcher III, son of one of the most powerful banking families in Indiana, faces a charge of grand larceny, to which he pleaded not guilty and will have a preliminary hearing. His sister, Louise Fletcher, with her companion, Ruth Miles, pleaded guilty to a preliminary hearing, and the judge fined them $40 each and sentenced them to thirty days in jail. The jail sentences were suspended.

IDENTITY DARK The identity of the woman who made the charge appear darker than the black eye she showed Deputy Sheriff Miles and Banks when she told them the Fletcher and Miles women had been her friends. According to the Sheriff's records, the mysterious woman first gave the name Miss V. Hurst. The Fletcher woman said they knew her as "Lady Diana Bathurst," while others said she was known to them as Virginia Hurst. A dark Deputy Sheriff Banks received a call from a woman who declared she was the complainant, and that she was Viola Hurst, an entirely different woman from Virginia Hurst.

COURTROOM SPECTATOR FALLS DEAD

Orange County Rancher Taken by Heart Disease Before Doctor Can Act

Stricken suddenly by what was pronounced to be an acute attack of heart disease, Harry L. Miller, Orange County rancher, dropped dead yesterday in Superior Judge Valentine's courtroom.

According to E. C. Polans, clerk in the room when he was overcome by the attack, Dr. H. G. Mark Miller, who at the time was a witness in the case on trial, rushed to the stricken man's side, but an examination, according to the physician, showed death had followed almost instantly.

The ending of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station has been discontinued, all enrolling at the local station being sent to San Diego.

The body of Mrs. Mary Lillian Rhodes, 46 years of age, wife of the late Edgar Graham Rhodes of New York City, who died yesterday, will be sent to her home in California.

The resolution of thanks was adopted on the 11th inst., and is as follows:

"That this association, recognizing the imperative need of open spaces for the physical, mental and moral well-being of the people of Los Angeles, hereby records its profound appreciation of the munificent gift to the city of Los Angeles by Miss Aline Barnsdall of her residence and grounds at Olive Hill, Hollywood—a donation magnificently responding to the present urgent need and providing a permanent home to the people in the coming years."

It was signed by Chairman Burman, George A. Damon, Mrs. Frances Noel and Mrs. Florence Harmon Zahn.

AMONG CLUB DINNER HONORS MISS BARNSDALL Amid a setting of artistic beauty a dinner was given by the California Art Club at the Otis Art Institute last night in honor of Miss Aline Barnsdall.

Miss Barnsdall recently presented the club her portrait of Olive Hill which will be used in the future as an art record.

It is the intention of the members of the club to erect a monument to Miss Barnsdall.

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

The death of "Eagle Eye" reveals that this prominent Indian actor and technical expert was a half-blood Chinaman. Without a drop of Indian blood.

Which Language? As for instance, the "Indian language" from which so many American city names are taken. There are more complete languages among the American Indians than there are languages in Europe under the name of "Indian."

In one section of the mountains of Southern California there are huddled remnants of tribes speaking twenty-seven distinct tongues — all within a radius of a few miles.

A LANCER UP A veteran cavalry officer who is really an expert in such matters, tells me that he saw an Indian movie actor proudly arrayed in clothes that belonged to six different tribes.

STUPID TRANSLATION Sam T. Clover in one of his books gives an instance of the weird translations of Indian names. One of the most celebrated Indians who ever lived has been translated under the name "Foghorn Man Afraid of His Horse." His real name was a title of honor. It was correctly translated: "Young Man of Whose Horses the Enemy Was Afraid."

NEGLECTED LURE I can't understand why the schools should contemptuously lump Indians all in a heap and dismiss them as redskins, and let it go at that.

It would seem much more important that school children should devote time to our own Indian civilization, and the important and interesting subdivisions thereof — rather than the ancient kings of Egypt.

SOCIOLOGY If for no other reason, the story of our Indians is a remarkable ethnological study of effect of environment.

A study, for instance, of the Sioux and the Hopis, and their contrasting modes of life would reduce vague sociological theories to practical demonstration.

If anybody in the school-teaching profession took the trouble to find out about these people, he would find an astonishing laboratory experiment in sociology. How even the religious beliefs have been affected by physical surroundings.

SOCIALISM THRIVED The most complete experiment in Socialism ever made was in the tribal life of some of the plains Indians.

And the effect of it was to show that Socialism is not a progress of civilization; but is only completely successful in certain primitive conditions which concern not the production of wealth but the distribution of wealth as it falls into the communal lap ready made, as it were.

BARRIERS A call has been sent out for a convention of veterans of the Indian wars to meet in Los Angeles this spring.

 With some perfumes selling at $200 an ounce a bit of folks are going unneeded.

RESURRECTION
 Death Valley, we are informed, is waking up. Or, as one might say, Death Valley is coming to life.

THE FULLNESS THEREOF
 Reading maketh a full man. And quite a bit of this modern reading maketh him full of brains.

THE SPEED AGE
 Old Father Time seems just like the other aviators—always trying to make faster and faster flights.

CANT LOSE THEIR HEADS
 A girl has some excuse for vanity if she captivates an aviator. Those fellows won't fall for everybody.

SILENT DRAMA
 When it comes to real life dramas, motion-picture stars seem to prefer anything to the silent kind.

WHEN IN ROME
 When people are in Rome they have to do as the Romans do—thus bringing variation to an ancient saw.

THE JOY RIDER
 One young man confessed to having stolen 230 automobiles last year. He must have been going for a ride.

THEIR FAVORITES
 The gentlemen of the dry squad, one assumes, do not prefer blondes—they seem to find a lot more thrill in brunettes.

DIFFERENT THEN
 One trouble is that many of the men who complain most of alleged heckling are quite fond of being chicken-pecked.

THIS PAYABLE
 No State Legislature would consider one-tenth as many bills as it does if the legislators instead of the public had to pay them.

COVERED WAGONS
 Don't imagine the days of the covered wagon are gone forever. Every wise man now has his speed wagon covered by accident and indemnity policies.

NEVER WEAR OUT
 The anxious father of four boys would like to know why they can't make rubber heels out of the same durable material that rubbernecks are made from.

BLAME IT ON THE JAZZ
 A radio announcer in Detroit is laid up with a dislocated jaw. Anybody who seeks to ring in a jaw-breaker in his bedtime story must expect trouble.

THE REDUCERS
 The only starvation wages being paid in America are those of people who are trying themselves the wages for bygone overindulgences at the dinner table.

SAD NEWS
 Forecasts for the year 1927 in Popular Science Monthly say that we may expect greatly improved varieties of food plants. This will make life harder still for those who are trying to reduce.

EXPERTS
 An expert has pronounced "Mona Lisa" not a genuine Leonardo da Vinci. A German expert declares the "Sixtine Madonna" is not the work of Raphael. Sometimes experts are just spurts.

CRAMPS OUR STYLE
 A bill barring the teaching of evolution from California schools has been introduced in the State Legislature. This is too bad—it makes it so hard to feel smugly superior to Tennessee.

ARCHAEOLOGY
 If any of the girls wearing ultra-fashionable heels make footprints in the sands of time the scientists of future generations are likely to find them and cry: "Lo, here is where the ancients drilled for oil!"

FOSFILLS
 A human molar has been discovered in a Bearcreek (Mont.) coal mine which Dr. Siegfried says is the most important fossil ever found. Other scientists have fossils also, but are not advertising them.

OUR SPLENDID ISOLATION
 With Marines in Nicaragua, gunboats in China and a tense situation in Mexico, some people still imagine the United States can keep out of the world affairs by merely shying away from the World Court and League of Nations.

"GET-OUT-THE-VOTE"
 If half of the American voters did not go to the polls at the last election, lamented John Hays Hammond. Possibly that encouraged Al Smith to break a champagne bottle over the brow of his boom as he launched it the other day.

"LET 'EM SQUAWK"
 "Multiplication is very low; division is as bad," and when it is a multiplication of taxes and the division of the spoils the situation for the taxpayer becomes distressing. Gov. Young has submitted to the Legislature his budget for the coming biennium. It is pruned to fall just below $200,000,000. For a single State of the population of California this breaks all records. California is first, and there is no second. The sum is comparable to the total expenditures of the State government for the first twenty years after California was admitted to the Union. There are those now living who State back to when the expenditures of the Federal government were little greater.

Considering that budget, we can rejoice that Gov. Young was elected on an economy platform. If he had not been restrained by a scrupulous desire to keep the people, so dramatically expressed in his inaugural, think what might have happened!

Former Gov. Richardson was denounced only two years ago by the present Governor for gross extravagance and a contemplated waste of State money when he presented a budget of $103,430,000. But how different things look from the outside than from the inside! Gov. Young says that by exercising the most rigorous economy he has been able to present a budget that totals only $193,518,168.

Southern California will pay the most of that sum, and Northern California will spend the most of it, an arrangement highly satisfactory to those living north of the Tehachapi. The Governor is a man of discretion. He is not attempting to please everybody, but will be contented to delight those living in the basin of the bay of San Francisco. Likewise, as a Progressive, the Governor is running true to form; for every Progressive administration California has known has increased State expenses by multiple progression.

The Governor's apologists have hastened to point out that, while the budget shows on its face "an increase" over that of two years ago, it must be remembered that the Richardson administration always spent considerably more than the budget estimates. It is to be regretted that this is true, for it sets a precedent that no genuinely Progressive executive is likely to violate. The 1925 budget carried appropriations totaling $103,430,000, and the actual expenditure for the biennium was $180,000,000. The 1923 budget was $79,000,000 and the actual expenditures were $142,000,000. That proportion holds true for about every budget since the first Progressive administration, that of 1910. And it is illuminating to recall that Stephens, Richardson and Young are all products of the Progressive school. All were at one time registered as Progressives.

Would it not be to cast reflections on the faculty of the present Governor, to suggest that he will depart in the way of budget making from the principles, and practices of former Gov. Johnson, the first of the Progressive line?

If Gov. Young runs true to Progressive form, the actual expenditures of the present biennium will be not less than $250,000,000; and those upon whom it devolves to supply this money would do well to prepare to meet the financial demand that will be made upon them.

Gov. Young makes plain that the present form of State taxation is not calculated to supply sufficient funds to conduct the State government along Progressive policies; so a commission is to be appointed to revise the system, with a view of enabling the State to collect more funds. We are headed straight for a property tax for State purposes, for a system under which we shall be taxed both directly and indirectly.

The present system was devised "to take the greatest amount of feathers from the goose with the least amount of squawking." But the demand for more feathers has become so imperative that the plucking will proceed, "and let 'em squawk."

A MUSTARD PLASTER
 John Farrar, editor of the Bookman, gets something off his chest in the editorial columns of his magazine. What he gets out of his breathing apparatus is "Mustard Plaster Mencken." He even makes a mild plea for this good, old-fashioned remedy.

Irrespective of the merits of the figure, it may be stated that the mustard plaster is not wholly an economic loss as an inventory. When it comes to dealing with acute inflammations of a certain character its effectiveness is beyond dispute.

A mustard plaster is not such a friend of repose that one would select it as a daily companion. It does not lessen the profanity of man. It seems to have fangs that can cut deep enough to draw out disease by the roots that may have fastened itself upon the internal workings. It goes to the seat of the trouble and does not hesitate in assuming full responsibility in attacking everything hidden under a man's vest.

Some unbelieving ones insist that its value lies wholly as a counter-irritant that makes you forget all other troubles. They declare that the agonies produced are worse than the disease itself and they just draw your mind off your own difficulties.

The mustard plaster in literature may have some of the same characteristics. The chief difficulty here appears to be that some folks want to keep the thing on all the time. No matter what comes up they clap on the mustard plaster as the one remedy for all ailments.

Now the truth is the mustard plaster has its limitations. While it may go after a cold on the lung hammer and tongs and draw it out in little fine excruciations on the anatomy, it would hardly be a success if applied to a bald pate.

The very bravado and unattractiveness of the mustard plaster is going after the house of kings and ditch-diggers alike make youth stand open-jawed in its presence. Its very hardness and courage in the peril of having its features scrambled all over the surrounding scenery make it the envy of the sophomore.

However, as a self-appointed panacea for all the ills of the universe it is a delusion and a snare. While one of its wallpaps may be a means of grace to an overgrown sham, yet as a tonic it is a good poison.

Herein is where many make a great mistake about a mustard plaster. A little of it has been known to go a long way. It has a reputation away beyond its helpfulness. Because it raises blisters that can be seen does not mean that its value is

Father Knickerbocker Gets Busy

(Projected by George Matthew Adams.)

Just as evident. Many accept it just because it is hot stuff. This is the age of chili and tobacco. However, even they must be absorbed with discretion. As a stimulant it may be holiday booze. Everything that has "kick" in it does not lengthen the life of the party.

GUILT DETECTORS
 A mechanical guilt detector has been invented. An electric stethoscope especially designed by the Bell Telephone Company amplifies the heartbeat so that the thump 100,000 times louder than normal. An entire audience can be revealed.

Guilt excitement is revealed by a moving spot of light on a screen. Extreme excitement projects the light entirely across the curtain. Emotions are said to lower the electrical resistance of the skin and the inventor has taken advantage of that fact and hit it up to his light. Lying furnishes its own peculiar deposit. The machine is a fairly accurate gauge of the feelings of the culprit. While there may be limitations, yet the one observed cannot keep his psychological states from registering and he becomes an open book. At least so says Dr. A. P. Link, instructor of psychology of New York University.

If it keeps up there will be nothing left to do except to be decent. No matter what a man may be guilty of, whether it be a crime or an acute case of affection, the detector immediately gets down to business and writes him up in hot Rupert Hughes style.

Business men might have them installed in their offices, and in the process of a deal they could observe the stir in a prospect's soul as various offerings are suggested. A dial might indicate the exact moment when to shove the dotted line under the victim's nose.

A wife might post one near the portals with considerable success and interrogate her spouse as he returns from the lodge early in the morning. She could pump a few inconsequentialities into him and then suddenly fire a leading question and view his inner surging in the machine.

Even a lover might carry one of them in his pocket and upon making approaches measure the degree of interest manifested. If there should be little signs of serious heart-futter he could retire in good order with his rings and altiray and seek other and more promising partners for his devotions.

This inventor may prove to be one of the greatest benefactors of all times and for all men, and not just the terror of the criminal.

THE KING'S ENGLISH
 Our English cousins are becoming extremely irked at the way the dramatists of our democracy maltreat the King's English. "Is zat so?" and "They knew what they wanted" were held up to the public view by London critics as especially atrocious examples of Americanese. They like neither our manner of pronouncing perfectly good English words nor our unfortunate habit of inventing new ones in the place of old words that have lost their meanings from misuse and overuse. The Londoners believe that the English language was caught, branded and doubtless "hogtied" in the tight littleisle long ago and that there is no room for further growth or improvement.

We can bear up under the accusation that our pronunciation is all wrong. Even the Prince of Wales cannot pronounce his father's English in a manner acceptable to the fussy critics of Britain. But it hurts our vanity to think that the apt and forceful words and expressions that the Yankee has added to his mother tongue have no standing at all on the other side of the Atlantic.

As a matter of fact, philologists claim that American English is much purer than that spoken in Britain, if our silly slang is ruled out. Most of our really expressive slang has been found to have an Elizabethan derivation, although the inventors rarely suspected it. British English has changed greatly since Shakespeare's day, but Americans still use many words in their Elizabethan meaning, to the mystification of their cousins overseas. And when it comes to pronunciation, a well-educated American can be depended upon to pronounce every syllable in a word, which is as it should be. Foreigners speaking English for the first time declare it much easier to comprehend an American than an Englishman. We speak more closely by the book.

STICKING TO THE SHIP
 One hero displaces another. Very probably if the boy who stood on the burning deck had been able to swim like George Young he never would have done it.

LET SLEEPING DOGS LIE
 By James J. Montague
 A scientist has suggested that by boring into the sides of volcanoes enough heat could be obtained to operate all the power in the world. I'm aware that it's the scientific spirit which brings us all the comforts that we crave. And if it had not existed we should still be hairy fisted, hairy chested, low-browed dwellers in a cave. But one thing to subdue the minor power. Of the rivers, and the cataraacts to tame. And another to go poking into craters hot with lava. Which may any time enwrap the world in flame.

We have coal enough to do us, for the present. There's abundant oil, I'm told, beneath the ground. And a means to use the motion of the wild and rocking ocean. For our light and heat and power may be found.

So why tunnel into somnolent volcanoes. Rousing gases from their subterranean beds. And awaking quiet forces which, when once they take their courses—Will blow all this placid planet into shreds?

Left alone these fiery giants sleep for ages. Only stirring in their slumbers now and then—Giving forth alarming flashes and distributing hot ashes. On some little paltry city of men. But disturb them to their depths in quest of power. And high heavenward the blazing will be hurled. Burning rocks and earth like tinder and soon a smoking cinder.

Will be left to represent our lovely world. Let us be content with harnessing the lightning. As it employs gasoline to run our Ford. Life is moderately pleasant, why not live it, for the present. Without prying into nature's hidden boards?

We have far more ease and peace and solid comfort. Than this poor old war-racked world has ever known—And far longer we'll employ them and more eagerly enjoy them. If volcanoes are severely left alone.

THE CHALLENGE OF THE SEA

Inscribed to George Young.
 BY T. HOWARD WILSON

The white foam beat about the channel lagoon. Above the sea kept, red and gold and brown. A sunken garden that the waves had built. For some devoted queen in alien years.

Upon the sand a hundred swimmers stood. Alert of mind and ready for the fray. With high adventure gleaming in their eyes. And there before them stretched the ancient sea.

That not in unremembered days ago. Had known the dominance of godlike man. Cattle and small gray herds. Supreme it lay within its own domain. Unconquered in unconquerable strength and pride.

"Behold!" the calm sea said, "I lie awash. Forever beneath the sun and moon. Secure, and undisturbed by midges. Save where he shivers at the silver marge. My curling waves his courage shall not pass. Nor swing his body through my crumpled waves. From shore to shore across the channeled food. This offspring of the gods, full-blown and proud. Must leave me this last gem of all my seas. Involuntarily. My emerald caskeys hold. Little bodies that shall stem the tides no more. Fear-possessed and drawn down steep and swirling deeps; And they shall never see the light of day.

Again, nor hear the velvet plash of life of men. Nor drink the fragrant breath of summer rose. With purple death I paint the lips of men. And like a vampire steal their strength away. About their bodies then I weave a shroud. Of moving phantasy and drag them down. With cunning rites that leave no splash. To mark their sleep within my everlasting arms. Beware, ye, then, for lo! I drag men down!"

So spake the sea, and some its challenge heard. But knew not why a numbness seized their brains. Nor did they fathom the peril of the sea. And for the guilting dark he touched the land. Amid the plaudits of a waiting world. And while the lordly sea stood back amazed. With laurel leaves they crowned the conquering youth. And wrote his name among the flaming stars.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES

[Name and address of writer must accompany all letters for this column. Letters of a personal nature involving contentious religious questions are not acceptable.]

The Little People
 LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In the January number of the Rev. "Bob" Shuler's magazine is an article descriptive of a hunting trip participated in by Rev. Shuler and his sons. He says:

"I have always loved to hunt, etc. . . . We will kill to satisfy our appetites or rather satisfy our love for the boom of a gun and the gleam of a tossed thing falling through the air."

I am wondering how the Rev. Shuler can quite forget those biblical texts: "In the hand of God is the soul of every living thing. . . . Blessed are the merciful. . . . I will have mercy and not sacrifice."

Frederic Van de Water recently dipped his pen in fire and wrote the following lines in the New York Tribune. The verses are dedicated to all those who see in the little people of the wood only targets for a ruthless and cruel gun; or to satisfy the lust to kill. "To hear the boom of a gun and the gleam of a tossed thing falling through the air."

THE LITTLE PEOPLE
 The Lord of the Little People. Gentle and wholly wise. Walking His woods in the twilight. Harks to His children's cries. And His tender mouth is wry with pain.

And terrible are His eyes. The snare that has throttled the Jerks to his dying strain; Trapped by his rust-thatched dwelling. The muskrat whimpers his pain. And here the bird with the shot-smashed wing. Hidden three days has lain.

The Lord of the Little People. Wisely goes his way. Seeking in vain His children. Fear and afraid are they. Of the mighty beast who has ravaged the world. With his hunger to slay, slay, slay.

Lonely the fields at twilight; Empty the darkling wood. There in the woodchuck's burrow Dead lies the orphaned brood. Here, where the bob-white coveys crowd together. Are feathers and drops of blood.

The Lord of the Little People—Who may divine what stirs His heart as He waits in the twilight. For songs from His worshippers. And hears but whimpers and squeals of pain. From His creatures of plumes and furs.

The partridge rots on the upland; The wild duck drowns in a sea; Beats on the wide-flung trapline Perish in agony. That the human thing with the weasel's lust. May wallow in mastery.

The Lord of the Little People. Who can His thoughts surmise? Cattle and small gray herds. Harked to His baby cries. He knows. He knows when a sparrow falls. And terrible are His eyes.

ROSEMONDE RAE WRIGHT.
 Band Tails, Not Passengers
 BOMBS (Ventura County) Jan. 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] A letter in your issue of January 14, written by Mr. John W. Taylor, expresses a doubt regarding the presence near Chatsworth of passenger pigeons. He is correct, as the passenger pigeon never visited this coast. The birds in question are band-tailed pigeons (Columba fasciata) and are quite common on the Pacific Coast from British Columbia as far south as Central California. These birds are fully protected by law and are quite numerous in Santa Ynez Valley of Santa Barbara county and the Ojai Valley in Ventura county. They subsist almost entirely on acorns and later in the season on the oak and maple buds.

THOMAS G. BARD.
 (Dedicated to George Young.)
 He was a brave, stout-hearted boy to face of the deep. He won his place. Through tireless hours of battling with the sea. But manlier, braver, more courageous, he. To name his mother as his patron saint.

She buoyed him up, although the voice was faint. He heard it speak above the roar of waves. When others buried hopes in watery graves. And when the raging sea would him destroy. With sinews strained, yet with defiance grim. He heard his trainer say: "Remember, boy. Your mother's listening in. Swim, buddy, swim!"

INTERESTING FACTS
 The man who threatens the world is always ridiculous; for the world can easily go on without him, and in a short time will come to miss him.—(Johnson.)

The more one speaks of himself, the less he likes to hear another talk of.—(Lavater.)
 Frame your mind to mirth and merriment, which bar a thousand harms and lengthen life.—(Shakespeare.)

 "We can't fill this order direct," announced the manager. "Any of the women clerks care to answer it?"—(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

Makes good food Taste Even Better

HEINZ TOMATO KETCHUP

It takes mighty good Ketchup to improve good food. That's why most folks insist on Heinz Ketchup. It is as good as Ketchup can be.

It is made in immaculate kitchens, of specially Heinz-grown tomatoes boiled down until only their rich, full-flavored essence remains—combined with pure granulated sugar and skillfully spiced to a tempting pi-quancy.

Millions use Heinz Ketchup to make good food taste better.

Why not a National Miser Month?
 (Suggests the Magazine of Wall Street)

THIS leading financial publication says: "During each day of this month make it a fixed rule to watch every expenditure 'like a miser.' Don't be half way about it either, but spend your money like a real honest-to-goodness story-book miser. Wherever you avoid spending even a few cents unnecessarily, make a note of the amount saved and how you accomplish it. If you get the habit of saving pennies and dimes, you will find yourself saving dollars without effort. Of course, the real purpose of this plan is to obtain a basis for a new and revised budget based entirely on your own experience."

It's a rather bold idea—but whether you favor it or not we suggest that you open a 4% Bank of America savings account anyway.
